Director Christine Murchio sent a letter to Robert Ferrara, Executive Director of the NJ Institute for Disabilities, thanking the institute for its support of the library’s Next Chapter Book Club for NJ Libraries (NCBC4NJL), and especially for the logistical and club member support provided by institute employees Venus Majeski, Randi Lamatino, and Shareise Gresham.

The director arranged a follow-up meeting with councilwoman Lizbeth DeJesus and library assistant director Patty Anderson, Main Library supervisor Linda Cooper, children’s services supervisor Nancy O’Grady, and technical services supervisor Lynne Merz to review the status of the 2015 National Hispanic Heritage Month (September 15th - October 15th) activities that the library is planning.

The library is now offering Flipster, which gives library patrons access to several dozen popular magazines available in a digital format. Among other topics, the magazines offered cover business, leisure, fashion, current events, product reviews. The magazines’ format is designed for readability on mobile devices and computers. The service is available to Woodbridge
Library users with a valid library card and is free of charge. Patrons can access the Flipster content from within the library or from external locations.

The library circulated 279 Flipster digital magazines in June.

The revised circulation policies were distributed to the Board for review, as were the previous versions of the policies so that members could compare the versions before voting on the resolution to approve them.

The policy committee is now working on a new dress code for employees.

The Evanced system implementation continues.

- The Summer Reader component for managing reading club data has been running without any software glitches.
- The SignUp component for scheduling events is being tested by librarians, who are familiarizing themselves with the software by using it to post their events.
- The Spaces online module for booking meeting rooms is being vetted by the library for the September rollout. On July 8th, Patty Anderson, Nancy O'Grady, and administrative clerk Neeta Pereira reviewed the module to assess its compatibility with the existing library meeting room booking policy. The policy will be revised to reflect the actual functionality of Evanced. One change that will be made is in moving to booking rooms in hourly increments rather than for blocks of hours (i.e., sessions).
  The module will offer the public and employees a time-efficient way to reserve spaces and an up-to-date view of available spaces for specific days and times.

The two Field Station: Dinosaur events on June 24th at the Main Library and Iselin locations repeated the success of the previous year's event. The star of the show was an animatronic, 15-foot, juvenile T. rex, who is a 5-year-old representation of his species.

The dinosaur's arrival was delayed by heavy traffic, which meant its trip from the Main Library to Iselin had to occur during rush hour. To encourage T. rex to retreat to his lair at the end of Main's show, the children were encouraged to out-roar him, which they did (repeatedly) with great glee and at great volume -- such powerful lungs in such small bodies.

T. rex reentered his truck, but was miles away from Iselin. The police department came to the rescue by providing a VIP escort for the dinosaur's journey from Main to the branch. When the police were asked if T. rex might get caught in traffic and be late for his next performance, the answer was a smile, shake of the head, and pithy, "Lights and sirens."

The director thanked the police department for all its traffic control efforts (securing necessary parking spaces, closing George Frederick Plaza, directing traffic) for the show.

The library's summer reading clubs are underway:

- Every Hero Has a Story (children)
- Unmask! (teens)
- Escape the Ordinary (adult)
Club information appears on the library website. About 700 children have registered for the club at the Main Library.

The Main Library's foreign film festival is running on Friday afternoons through August 7th. This week's feature is the French comedy Amelie, which will be followed by Jet Li's Fearless (Huo Yuanjia), City of God (Cidade de Deus), and Gloria in succeeding weeks.

The museum pass program has been launched. An icon on the library website's homepage takes site visitors to an information page about the service. The page's introductory section provides general information about borrowing the passes (library card ownership; pass reservations, availability, loan periods, pick-ups and returns; and fines and fees for overdue passes. Specific details about borrowing the passes for the participating locations (the Grounds for Sculpture; Guggenheim Museum; Intrepid Sea, Air & Space Museum; American Museum of Natural History; and Montclair Art Museum) are also provided.

The program is underwritten by the Friends.

Physical Plant

The fan motor in the Main Library's water cooling tower failed on July 8th. The HVAC system was shut down to prevent further damage to it. When the system was examined to determine whether the motor could be repaired or not (it could not), the repair company discovered that the internal hanger straps for supporting the tower's water pipes are broken, and the tower's internal honeycomb structures that disperse the water within the tower have collapsed.

Brian Burke obtained emergency funding to purchase a new motor, which was installed on July 9th. It is running at 80% of capacity until the additional water tower repairs can be made. Brian has arranged for a full assessment of the water tower's deficiencies and an estimate of repair costs, which the Township will cover.

Staff

Main librarians Ellen Bonacarti and Wendi Rottweiler participated in the Barnes & Noble Get Pop-Cultured: To Kill a Mockingbird Read-a-Thon event on July 13th. The event ran in the Menlo Park store from 9 a.m. - 9 p.m., and volunteers read aloud chapters of author Harper Lee's To Kill a Mockingbird throughout the day in anticipation of her new book's publication on the following day. The new book, Go Set a Watchman, will be available from the library on its official release date.
